

November seems to be a very quiet month.

There is a variation of licence at 51a George Street (now Eastside, previously Opal Lounge). It looks like it's just a new bar trying to re-organise itself. In my view it's an improvement on Opal Lounge, so I don't have any issues with this.

There is an occasional licence at 3 Hill Street. This appears to be for some wine tasting events. Again, I have no concerns about it.

I have not yet received any feedback about Edinburgh's Licensing Statement, although there is a summary of responses to the consultation on the Licensing Procedure Regulations to which we contributed, published on the Scottish Government's Consultation Hub and on <https://www.gov.scot/Publications/2018/10/3937>.
